The Halloween party in Pahokee Saturday night was a big success. I've talked to many of the children who participated and they all agreed that it was okay. I also talked to several of the school students about the dance in the school gym. They said to be sure and express their thanks to the Rotarians, Elks, Lions and other citizens who donated the money to pay for the orchestra. They were "ticked to death" with the orchestra and the music it furnished for the dance.

Look magazine recently carried pictures of Otto Graham, Northwestern football star, which were of interest to Pahokee residents since Otto is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Graham of Pahokee. This is Otto's "senior year" at Northwestern where he has been a star of the gridiron for four seasons.

Dick Richardson To Open Office Monday

T. C. "Dick" Richardson, accountant and income tax specialist, will open a new office Monday in the room formerly occupied by the Barber shop in Pahokee. The room has been completely remodeled and new fixtures are being installed.

Mr. Richardson has been in the bookkeeping, accounting and income tax returns business for nearly ten years and has come to be recognized by state and federal officials as an expert in his line. He has a full complement of income taxes which is being installed in his new office.

For several years Mr. Richardson has been located at the office of the Pahokee Lumber company and has conducted his business from there. In the future he will serve his many customers from his new office which has been remodeled with the idea of giving the best service possible.

Blue Devils Win Over Delray; Play Ft. Pierce Tonite

The Pahokee Blue Devils defeated the Delray Beach Seahawks, 13 to 6, in a bruising return game with the East Coast eleven played there last Friday afternoon.

Coach Frank Ostens's men showed marked improvement in their blocking, completely broke up the Seahawks' passing attack and stopped the end runs which contributed to their defeat in the first encounter with Delray Beach.

The Blue Devils started the scoring in the second quarter when Cotton Funderburk blocked a Delray Beach punt on the Seahawk's 10. Batchelor went around end for the touchdown. A buck through the line netted the extra point. Delray Beach scored in the third period after marching 65 yards and Pahokee made the final touchdown in the fourth period when "Buck" Smith, in a brilliant play, ran 50 yards down field then finding himself hemmed in by tacklers, lateraled to Wilkins who ran the ball across the goal line.

The Blue Devils will face their stiffest opposition so far this season when they face the Fort Pierce Eagles on Saturday night. The high flying Eagles have defeated every team they have met this season including the Fort Lauderdale Flying L's and are coming to Delray with a determination to continue their record of consecutive wins at the expense of the underdog Blue Devils.

Coach Ostens has been trying hard to get his squad in condition for their contest with the Eagles, stressing pass defense and improved blocking and tackling in this week's practice sessions. "We are not in top condition but we are going to give Fort Pierce a real battle," he said Thursday night.

The kickoff will be at 8:30 p. m. The Delray High School Band and Drill Team will perform between halves.

Dist. Governor Of Rotary Pays Pahokee Visit

Harry M. Smith, district governor of Rotary International in Florida, paid his official annual visit to the Pahokee and Belle Glade clubs yesterday when the two districts met in Pahokee for the occasion.

In a masterful address Governor Smith pointed out the many accomplishments of Rotary throughout the world and said that the organization today is bigger than ever before despite the fact that war had caused many clubs throughout Europe to disband for the duration.

There are today more than 5,000 Rotary clubs in the world and membership reaches more than 216,000, the visiting official said. Last year 125 new clubs were organized.

Governor Smith's address centered around the thought "Rotary in a World at War."
Belle Glade Rotarians were guests of the Pahokee club for the meeting. Louis Gold was a guest of the Pahokee club. A. Abe Dobrow and Mayor McClellan were guests of the Belle Glade Rotarian Club. Freeman Thomas Gartland, employee of Basemore Properties at Port Mayaca, was introduced as a new member of the Pahokee club.

Weather News Now Available

LAKELAND, Nov. 1.—The Weather Bureau Front Warning Service Monday began issuing twice-daily forecast bulletins to aid more than 150,000 growers throughout the State in protecting their crops.

The bulletins, according to Warren O. Johnson, meteorologist in charge of the local Weather Bureau, are being furnished through the joint cooperation of the Federal Weather Bureau and the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment stations.

Field men have returned to their districts in Peninsular Florida to set up forecast and temperature survey stations. They are available to growers for technical advice on the best means of frost protection.

A "future outlook" also is being issued. It contains as much advance warning as possible so that growers may arrange for labor used in firing groves in the advent of a predicted frost.

In addition, truck growers in the Everglades and West Coast districts are being supplied with daily rain forecasts. The 51 forecast stations located in Peninsular Florida provide minimum temperature forecasts with greater in two degrees for every grower in the State.

Beans Ruined By First Frost

When the Lake Region had a cool spell a few days ago there was little thought among growers about damage from frost. However, several acres of beans were ruined by W. R. Blackford, lost around 45 acres north of Canal Point and W. R. Wilson, who farms near Lake Harbor, lost over 100 acres from frost.

Halloween Party For Students Is Huge Success

Adult spectators who had grandstand seats at the big Halloween costume party given for Canal Point and Pahokee school children on last Friday Saturday night through the cooperation of the Canal Point and Pahokee PTAs, the Lions, the Elks and the Rotarians were unanimous in acclaiming it a huge success.

The party was the result of plenty of hard work on the part of PTA officers and members in charge of arrangements and of teachers and room mothers who carried out the details but there were loads of entertainment and clats for the children and everyone had fun which vandalism played no part.

The feature of the party, of course, was the gala costume parade in which the children, dressed in a wide variety of costumes, turned out in full force and marched to the music of the Pahokee High School Band. Twelve prizes were awarded, four in three age groups, for the best costumes judged for being the most beautiful, the most comical, the most original and the most typical of Halloween. The costumes showed such ingenuity of get up that the judges had a hard time making decisions.

Prizes were awarded as follows: the most comical for that worn by Merle Smith who startled and fooled most spectators when he came in with a "roaming convalescent" costume; the most original for that worn by Stanley Hook as a "roaming convalescent" and the prize winners, Bobby Schroeder as the "victory nut kid" also created many a laugh with his delightful satire of present day conditions.

Prizes were awarded as follows: Group one, Most beautiful, Donna Lynn Mac as Carmen Meranda; most comical, Tommy Chastain as a "roaming convalescent"; most original, Charlotte Ann Kate as Statue of Liberty; most typical of Halloween, Peggy Lynn Shirley as a witch.

Group two, Most beautiful: Mrs. Jane Baker in evening dress; most comical, Bill Kirk and Payne Jackson as organ grinder and monkey; most original, Bobby Schroeder as a ration book; most typical of Halloween: Stanley Hook as a skeleton.

Group three, Most beautiful: Wynne Lee Fraser as Queen of Hearts; most comical, Billy Jernigan in a suit; most original, Merle Smith as a "roaming convalescent"; most typical of Halloween, Joyce Pascoe in a hoop skirt.

Prizes were given in the gym for high school students given at the same time as the party was also a big success.

The idea for a Halloween party for school children was created last year when the Lions started the ball rolling with a party for the children as a reward for their work in the scrap drive. From the splendid results obtained both this year and last it looks as if it will become an annual affair and well it should be.

Sunbeams Enjoy Halloween Party

Mrs. Verdie Jones and Mrs. R. F. Hurt entertained at the late afternoon party given by the Sunbeams for members of the Sunbeams Band. Prizes were awarded to Jack Chandler for the cuttiest costume, to Lovia Williams for the prettiest and to Carol Ann Mullis, for the most original. Halloween gowns were played and fortunes were told by Mrs. Jones and Annie Lee Hurt, dressed as gypsies.

Others attending were Bobby Moberg, Carol Jacobs, Margaret Mizell, Carlton Mizell, Gene Caruthers, Don and Max Bevelly, Melba Pugh, Sonny Boy Pugh, Norma Jean Andrews, Doris Hargrave, Nancy Hillier, Thurman Kemp, Sara Hall, Ida Wade, and Henryetta Lovett.

Mrs. Tommy Parker expects to leave this weekend for Virginia where she will spend a week visiting her husband, Opl. Parker, who is stationed at Camp Pickett.

TOUGH MARINES

A couple of leatherneck aviators had been shot down and were floating around the Pacific in their rubber boat when a Jap submarine surfaced and its crew called on the Americans to surrender.

The marine flyers held a whispered conference.

"That's the stuff," said one to the other. "Let 'em thing we're giving up. Then when we get close—we'll ram 'em—Investment Readers' Digest."

POPULAR PRICES

The department of commerce figures that the cost of living has gone up only 7 percent in the last year. That may be true the way the department figures it, but there is an old saying that figures don't lie.

"In figuring the cost of living, the commerce department includes every item of merchandise which is for sale to the public. Some of these commodities have doubled in prices; some haven't gone up at all. We don't know about you, brother, but the things we buy—seem to be the ones that have doubled.—Sanford Herald.

LUCKY SHOEMAKE

A little shoemaker left the gas turned on in his shop one night and upon arriving in the morning started a match to light it. There was a terrific explosion, and the shoemaker was blown through the door almost to the middle of the street.

A passer-by rushed to his assistance, and after helping him to rise, inquired if he was injured.

The little shoemaker gazed at his place of business, which was now burning briskly and said:

"No, I ain't hurt, but I got out shust in time, eh?"—Winter Haven Herald.

WELL INFORMED

Shooting a series of rapids, a man vacationing in the wilds of Maine, expressed concern at the growing fury of the swirling water, and the jagged rocks on every side. "Don't worry for a minute," his guide assured him. "I know every rock in these rapids."

Just then the canoe smashed into one of the rocks head on, and capsize. The man found himself floundering in the current, his equipment scattered in every direction. "You see," said the guide, trying to save his paddle, "there's one of the darn things now!"—Game Gazette.

COUPON CRIPPLE

At the Union station in Washington, as the sleeping cars disgorged their passengers

ers with briefcases, there came through the turmoil an old man in a wheelchair, pushed by a redcap. The man had a steamer rug tucked under his knees, and carried in his lap the inevitable briefcase.

When the wheelchair arrived at the taxi platform, everybody fell back to make room for the "sick" man. Suddenly the old man gave a lurch, his steering feet, arose, tipped the porter, and walked briskly to the cab. Immediately the mob, sensing an outrageous trick, began to grumble.

The old man stuck his head out of the window and held up a hand for silence. "Shoes got stolen in sleeper last night," he exclaimed. "Have to go to hotel and wait for my office boy to send me a number 18 coupon."—Rays of Sunshine.

QUOTA EXCEEDED

A Quaker woman was appearing as a witness before a fussy old judge in a certain eastern state. She wore a poke bonnet which muffled her ears and prevented her from hearing the lawyer's questions. The judge requested her to remove it.

"I'll do no such thing," she replied.

"Madam," admonished the judge, "I am accustomed to having my will respected."

"Well, I don't care if there is a judge," she countered, "that bonnet stays right where it is."

"Perhaps," exclaimed His Honor, glaring down upon the witness, "you should like to take my place as judge, too, eh?"

"Not a bit of it!" rejoined the witness. "There are too many old women on the bench of this state already!"—Collier County News.

MESSAGE FROM THE FRONT

Private Jones was already as overloaded as a back-burro, what with rifle, extra rounds of ammunition, trenching tools, pair of cutters, tin hat, gas-mask, extra rations, and all the other equipment which makes the American soldier the most equipped of men.

Not the least burdened soldier in the world. The final straw came when he was handed a wicker cage containing a carrier pigeon.

The square-jawed fellow at the top and advanced into the mist-hidden beyond, and he was to be a surprise attack, so there had been no artillery preparation. At the observation post the colonel and his staff waited for the sound of firing.

The distant rattle of rifle fire, and the officers began to calculate how soon they might reasonably expect some word touching on the results of the day.

They tried the ground telephone, but it was mute. They peered out into the mist for some sign of a runner. Suddenly the pigeon which had been entrusted to Private Jones soared into view. He opened the cage and finally fluttered down and alighted on the colonel's hand.

The colonel waited anxiously while a soldier climbed up and brought the feathered messenger down. With trembling fingers he sought out the tiny cylinder on the bird's leg, opened it and drew forth the message.

Unrolling the paper, he read this succinct statement: "I'm tired of carrying this damn bird!"—London Times.

from Starke no good. Political history shows that despite the claims of its leaders, labor does not enter the voting booth with a ring in its nose. The rank and file think for themselves and vote as their own conscience dictates, and while both Sheldon and Green might each count on a sizeable labor vote, it would still be a gamble in their case and other candidates would take a goodly share between them. The same goes for the "old folks."

So this leaves Millard Caldwell in a much more favorable position. Without being tagged a "labor" candidate he will get many a union man's vote from the rank and file membership.

With the formal announcement of Senator Ernest Graham expected soon, his entry will further complicate the picture, for he is an able campaigner, well qualified to hold his own against the others in the race. He will come in conflict with Caldwell more than either Sheldon or Green but he can be counted on to give both of these gentlemen plenty of trouble for he, too, has a strong following among the "old folks" and he has some mighty good friends in the labor group as well.

In the offing we have Dewey Dye and Senator Frank Upchurch, both good men with strength enough in their own right to further split the overall vote and muddy the waters generally, and there will undoubtedly be a dark horse or two for later consideration.

Public interest won't really begin to jell for some time and anything can happen, but with Sheldon in the race now the gubernatorial see-saw is grounded with Sheldon and Green holding it down, Caldwell in the air; Graham is reaching for the upper end of the plank, and when he lands his weight to that of Caldwell, it will really begin to rock, and no fooler.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY
by Russell Kay

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

by Russell Kay

The Florida Labor Advocate, published by Charlie Silva, former President of the Florida Federation of Labor and recognized as the state's leading mouthpiece of the A. F. of L., has announced that State Senator Raymond Sheldon of Tampa will be a candidate for Governor.

If the Advocate is correct, this puts an entirely new complexion on the gubernatorial race, brightening the picture considerably for some aspirants and dampening the prospects of others.

Because of his long and consistent service to the cause of organized labor as represented by the A. F. and L. both in his private practice of law and as their legal representative and spokesman as a member of the Legislature, Sheldon is justified in assuming that as a candidate for Governor he would fall heir to the solid labor vote of the state and be able to look in this direction for financial support as well.

He is undoubtedly counting also on a strong following among what is left of the depleted ranks of Townsendites since he has with equal consistency played ball with them, losing no opportunity to render his services at their gatherings and plaudits their cause in legislative halls.

Thus it would seem that the following of the aggressive young Senator from Hillsborough, as a gubernatorial race would come largely from these two avenues. Viewing the situation in the light of the present day conditions it would appear that any candidate able to command such a following would have a big edge, for Florida labor in the past two years has enlarged its membership to where it presents a formidable bloc from the standpoint of numbers. While Townsendites are pretty much disorganized as a group, the old age pension idea still has a tremendous appeal and although the "old folks" have been going on one sleigh-ride after another in the fervent pledge of political aspirants, from Constable to United States Senator, it stands, to reason they have been so many times in the past.

But it happens that Lex Greep looks to these same rich and hazy fields for the votes he needs to gain the illustrious title of Chief Executive. His record in the matter of winning votes and influencing voters speaks for itself and anybody who beats him at it will have to be pretty good, particularly in appealing to the "old folks" and to labor. These fields have already been posted. "Lex Greep—No Trespassing." Having shepherded these flocks for so many years, it stands to reason that Mr. Greep will not relinquish his claim without a struggle.

With Green generally accepted as "the man to beat," the entry of Sheldon will do the Gentleman

CINEMATIC CHATTER.....

What The Movies Have To Offer During The Coming Week

No doubt a good many of my readers have had the pleasure of reading John Steinbeck's book "The Moon is Down," if you have you know it is one of the most absorbing story's of the European situation ever recorded.

Commencing with the Ode Show, Saturday night and running through Sunday - Monday, this thrilling story comes to the Prince Theatre Screen with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Henry Travers, Lee J. Cobb, Doris to have a very delightful voice.

To those who didn't read the book the story is about the heroic struggle of the inhabitants of Norway, their indomitable spirit and love for freedom, even in the face of mass executions, so vividly portrayed in this picture and which are commonplace in the occupation of Europe today.

Steinbeck wrote "The Moon is Down" shortly after the ruthless invasion of Norway when the dead was fresh in the minds of all free Americans. His probing pen, which has earned for him an envied reputation in literary circles, went to new depths of stirring drama in telling this touching story of devotion and courage.

I don't think any of us have forgotten "Edge of Darkness," and I can tell you that "The Moon is Down" has all of the thrills, suspense and drama that Errol Flynn's picture had. I, therefore, do not hesitate to recommend this show, even to those who are a little tired of so many war pictures.

Do you remember that little bundle of sweetness Mary Lee? Do you remember how refreshing and childlike she was in her last picture? Well, you are going to find her every bit as delightful in her latest picture "Nobody's Darling." She is due at the Prince Theatre, Tuesday-Wednesday, and she is surrounded with a grand cast of veterans, including Gladys George, trooper of dramatic stock and Broadway productions, who has made such a fine name for herself in the cinema.

The story is a very human and has to do with the children of Hollywood picture stars, farmed out to the famous Pennington School for Unfortunate Children. According to the story, they are putting on an annual review for the school. Complications arise when they discover the kid, Mary Lee, who was thought to be without glamour, proves to have a very delightful voice.

In the meantime her parents, Gladys George is her mother in the show, discover her from school and it indeed looks black for the producers of the revue. But in the end, there is always a happy end, the parents consent to her going back to school and appearing in the revue. We don't need to tell you the review goes over and Mary Lee is the hit of the show. In the piece she does five song numbers and does every one of them handsomely. "Nobody's Darling," is the type show that will please all cinema goers.

On this program will be found the usual round of short subjects and the current news.

They have teamed Edgar Buchanan, Claire Trevor and Jess Barker and placed them in "women at war" story under the title "Good Luck Mr. Yates."

Now Edgar Buchanan needs no introduction, as we can remember him in every film we have seen him in as an artistic character actor who never muffed a part. Claire Trevor likewise is a clever actress with a refreshing personality; the desired amount of glamour and a very pleasing voice. As for Jess Barker, although this young man is a new comer to films, he has not failed up to this date to give creditable performance, and we predict he will go far in the cinema.

The story tells the thrilling story of the exciting lives of the great army of shipyard workers. Claire plays the part of a welder in coveralls that couldn't cover her woman's heart and Jess Barker is seen as the "red-blooded" young American some fools called "yellow." Edgar has a fat part as the fighting leader in the home-front battle we must all win.

Saturday comes Roy Rogers and George (Gaby) Hayes in "Riding Down the Canyon," which is up to par with other Western pictures and these stars have made.

There you have it for the week and I hope you like everyone of them. Don't forget those War Bonds and Stamps, folks. They are as important to our fighting force as anything we can do—war—for us. Get them at the theatre and get complimentary tickets.

See you at the movies—Mal.

Here's Word from Bill!

"... and tell my old gang down at the Telephone Company that I'm thinking of them. I see tons of telephone materials every day over here—in the form of tanks, shells and field communications equipment. We need a steady stream of these supplies to win—and being a telephone man, I know that telephone lines have to carry messages affecting production and transportation of fighting equipment. So I hope you fellows are helping to keep the wires clear, for war calls which MUST go through. Love, BILL"

Fellows like Bill Jones—on the fighting front—know what they're talking about when they say that Victory depends upon an unceasing flow of supplies. And at home, those directing the war effort rely on the telephone to keep munitions and men moving forward. These urgent calls pass through the same local telephone equipment you use. Yet facilities can't be expanded to meet demands fully, because the necessary materials are being made into planes, tanks and guns.

By avoiding unnecessary local calls—and by speaking briefly whenever you talk—you help relieve crowded lines and switchboards for war duty. In that way you help speed vital war calls.
